Ok if you can access gumtree and realestate. Com and look on there I will also try find time to look and apply for them, this will give you more of an opportunity so you have somewhere to go to asap.

Hi John,

If I am eligible for Rent Assistance I might be able to afford $200-$225 per week. Depending on the space available, some items in storage may be able to be moved there which would free up a few more $ for rent. On 12 May 2022, at 12:46, John Araneda <johnar@communify.org.au> wrote:

Good afternoon David

From my end I can look into any vacancies that are available which would most likely be one bedroom or studio rooms as there is not much available unless we look into private rental where rent connect could possibly help advocate to get you into one of those properties with no private rental history. How much is the maximum you can pay realistically in today's market?
