Thanks David - oh yes, I heard the interview on my way in this morning. You were great! I thought the segment was really good overall too, and will go back and listen to a recording to hear all the calls/texts that came through throughout the show (I couldn't listen to the whole show, but heard there was great feedback from listeners).

We'll include a suggestion for folks to write/call the minister in the facebook post.

We also hope the protest isn't necessary, and there's a reasonably good change it won't be. But it is important to generate a lot of interest for it in order to get the cops and the department to back down. So actually creating the event and sharing it with journos who will hopefully write about it is, in itself, very powerful.

Thanks for sending Sam's contact details. I haven't gotten around to contacting Jo yet, but will let you know if I get through to her.

Steph

Hey Steph, thanks for the update and all the work you and your colleagues are putting into this. Very much appreciated.

My story went to air on the ABC first thing on Rebecca's show this morning. Michael also spoke very well about the issue. I'll get a recording of the whole thing soon for archiving and can share this if you want a copy.

I'm not sure if Rebecca mentioned that people should write to the Minister and let her know the eviction needs to be stopped. We need to keep shouting that message to generate public pressure.

The Facebook post is a great idea.

The protest is ok too but I'm hoping it won't be necessary.

I have not heard from Jo Sampford for a while now.
