Attn Frank:

QCAT have finally made a decision on the application to stay. It has been refused, and a new Warrant of Possession will be issued to take effect next Monday 7 June for 14 days.

I need to get advice about the appeal. Given that the stay has been refused, is this a sign that QCAT regards the appeal has little chance of success?

I note that the appeal will not be heard before the new Warrant expires. What does that means for the appeal? Is there any point in going ahead with the appeal after the Warrant has been executed?

Regards,

David Barker
