Hello Chloe,

I was referred to you by another Aspie friend who suggested I contact you to publicise an ongoing travesty playing out right now in the otherwise wonderful State of Queensland.

I was diagnosed with Aspergers in 2014, but I most likely was born with it. In 2016, I moved into public housing at Taringa, in the inner west of Brisbane. It is an area I have called home for more than 25 years and I have developed a large network of community connections in that time. You will understand the extreme importance of these connections for the effective management and therapy of Aspergers. I have partnered with my psychologist and together I have been brought out of my cave into society. I have flourished here.

But the Queensland Government is threatening to undo all of this by evicting me from my public housing apartment next Friday 17 June. I want to explain all the details but I have to go out in 15 minutes so for now, I just wanted to introduce my situation to you in the hope that you would get on board and speak out about my situation. I have sent you a few emails and other documents to give you some background. If you're interested in taking up this cause, shoot me a message back and I'll be able to provide more information this evening.

Thanks for taking time to read this.

Regards,

David Barker
