Sorry I missed you; I waited until 1030 but I could not delay work any longer. As you probably know, I was issued with two Notices to Leave yesterday. I have removed some of the items from the front yard but the rain is not helping. I will not work in the rain; shame on anyone who expects me to do so. The added complication with the wet weather is that some items can only be removed once they have dried out. This will therefore delay matters by at least a week, if the forecast is correct. I do not apologise for the weather as it is out of my control. It is my endeavour to have the front yard clear (not necessarily "clean", as it has been revealed that "clean" is not "clear", and vice versa -yet another of their nebulous definitions) by the date on the Notice to Leave, but I do not guarantee that and I make no commitment to any date whatsoever. It takes as long as it takes, weather permitting. It will help immensely if the Department would stop meddling and sabotaging my efforts to comply with their requests.

If the weather is better next week, as forecast, then I should be here most of the time working in the front yard. You may visit whenever you wish.

Regards

David Barker
