Hi John,

Just checking in to learn of any further developments you've heard from Housing since you were here.

As you've seen yourself, the front yard has now been returned to the state it was in on 2021-09-03, which is the date that Sam Powderly conducted an inspection and declared it acceptable. It is my intention to maintain this area like this from now on. You will notice the mulch I laid down to encourage grass growth and make it difficult to store other items here as a sign that I am .

I was in my car preparing to leave when two Housing officers pulled up and inspected the front yard. They did not see me in my car and I did not speak with them. They left after a few minutes.

The QCAT hearing is on next Tuesday. I will book a room at the Indooroopilly Library to take the call. There are still many different possible outcomes to this hearing, including an adjournment for another hearing at a later date. I have been advised to consider Plan B's in the event that a decision is made against me on Tuesday. I have done so and will continue to mull this over the weekend.

Regards,

David Barker
